2013 Preface

The book Tuning the Diamonds: Electromagnetism & Spiritual Evolution was originally written during a time in my life when I was involved with energy practitioners and interested in understanding more about the human energy field. My long term interest in metaphysics and metaphysical writings suggested something major was about to happen, and this made me especially curious about specific messages related to the need to shield the human energy field. In 2004, I discovered space weather, and in August of the same year, I was asked to write a chapter in someone else's book. By May 2005, I had decided to write my own book, having already spent nearly six months researching and writing full-time. In September 2006, I self-published because I decided not to trust the people I had been involved with. Moreover, I did not think there was time to waste sending my manuscript to publishers who are not interested in anything 'different' from a new author. I did not know much about publishers, but I was persuaded not to bother after reading stories of highly qualified authors who had been rejected by various publishers over many years. I also did not want to give a publisher my ideas so that they could tip-off their favorite author. I did need help with editing, but even though I was part of an international organization with thousands of people, there was little support. This was because my research was coveted; there was only interest in stealing my work to sell on at a much higher price. I did find my some help eventually, but sadly, things did not work out as well as I had hoped and as I tried to finish editing my book alone, I started to suspect I suffered from some dyslexia. Well, after I spent months trying to fix my manuscript, I finally did publish and in November 2007, my book with some typos and grammatical errors was still good enough to be placed in the UK National Archives ensuring that the book will "become available to present and future generations". Now that it is official that the Earth's magnetosphere is breaking down, my feeble attempts at trying to explain why certain energy practitioners were attempting to create cosmic energy shields will be of some historical interest in the future.

Since I wrote and published my book, there have been some major disappointments. The Cultic Milieu harbors people who seem to be brilliant at creating illusions and there is one author whose work has been affectively removed from this version of my book. I simply did not do enough checking into whether his scientific research was properly peer reviewed. I will admit, I mistook being published by a major publisher as a sign of credibility. I now realise that there is some real dross being churned out by New Age publishers and some authors are so famous that it does not seem to matter whether their work is convincing or not, people automatically buy it.

This e-book is a revised and updated 2013 version of the original book Tuning the Diamonds: Electromagnetism & Spiritual Evolution published and printed as a paperback in 2006 and 2008 with slight revisions. In this version, I have toned down my enthusiasm for working with the human energy field because I am not totally convinced that powerful energetic procedures should be promoted without some professional oversight. This is partly because in the last 6 years or so, I have been disappointed over and over again with New Agers in the Cultic Milieu that lack integrity, something that seems to be ingrained as I have found out. Please read my long essay Spiritual Evolution in the Cultic Milieu (August 2011), where I fully explain my position on this matter. I have spent over 30 years seeking truth and enlightenment and I am not impressed with people who routinely lie for convenience. However, there is nothing I can do about people who use my insights to sell their wares, this is a problem that many different types of authors face and there is not much that can be done to stop those who are the most unscrupulous.

My original research was not perfect, but it was the best I could do at the time. I tried to create a foundation for understanding how spirituality is linked to the human electromagnetic field, and I pulled together the opinions of various scientists and mystics who could shed some light on this subject. In this regard, it must be stated that whether someone is a scientist or a mystic, not every word coming from their lips is divinely inspired... In my efforts, I did not feel the need to provide only the latest cutting edge news because it seems most people don't know some basic information and some amazing scientific insights that are decades old. In the same way that people were surprised to find out about the development of instruments used on astronauts that have provided some excellent scientific validation for certain important metaphysical insights, this new version of my book provides a few more insights that are equally astounding.

One of the reasons why it has taken a long time to release an e-book is simply because I thought my hard work would be quickly stolen. From the word go, various people who were more established than me tried to steal my insights. In 2007, one author even dared to ask for teaching materials on my research after running onto Coast to Coast Radio and talking about, 'Tuning the Diamonds'. Well, I now believe that I have sold enough paper copies of my book; my websites are popular enough; my long essays and my White House report are now 'out' in the public domain for people to recognize where certain ideas and concepts originate. I think I have worked hard enough to stop plagiarizers; but who knows, a lack of integrity runs deep in the Cultic Milieu. There is nothing I can do about people who use my insights to sell their wares. This lack of integrity is a problem that many different types of authors face, and there is not much that can be done to stop those who are the most unscrupulous.

Since I did not have a lot of support, it was really difficult to make certain types of decisions, especially when there was no one trustworthy enough around to act as a proper sounding board. So I have decided to only update where I think certain concepts need to be expanded and explained better. Instead of 10 chapters, there are now 12 chapters and some information has been re-arranged. There is a lot of information in my News of the Imbalance webpage that could be used to update this book as well, but it would be an arduous task. Hence, I have tried my best to only add the most useful insights that fit the original premise of the book.

This e-book is still effectively a textbook that introduces the concept of space weather and then integrates science and metaphysics to reveal some important insights. The overall premise of my book is that we were entering a New World Age dominated by the aether or space - a premise that has been spectacularly confirmed by various space agencies, reports by major insurance companies warning big business and the announcement by the US & UK governments in June 2011, that they are now prepared to take down national power grids at a moments notice, to stop hundreds of transformers being destroyed in the event of extreme space weather. Therefore I am pleased that I realized the importance of Space Weather when very few outside of the space communications and power industry were even aware of the seriousness of our world experiencing a major cosmic deluge.

As a seeker, I do not regret the many thousands of hours I have spent researching since this endeavor is what has led me to some profound truths. Yes, I was right about Space Weather, but discovering sacred geometries and our relationship to the divine has been far more profitable for my soul. Thus, the aim of this book is to enable the serious seekers to understand what is taking place in our world. If they are interested in delving deeper into the metaphysics, they are better able to sift out the offerings from the most unscrupulous in the Cultic Milieu. Now it is my great pleasure to I share these amazing discoveries with other serious seekers.

Introduction

We are living in extraordinary times! Humanity is in the midst of a massive transformation, taking place on Earth, one that has been predicted by Keepers of Ancient Knowledge and various esoteric groups from many traditions. This is an evolutionary change and mankind is being invited to evolve and move into a New World Age. This requires that we live in balance and harmony with ourselves, in our relationships and most importantly with the Earth. Evolutionary change is energy driven and this book identifies 'New Energy' to be coming from deep space that is also affecting the center of our Milky Way Galaxy. A powerful alignment is taking place, which is increasing the frequency of planet Earth and providing a new source of energy for individuals who choose to raise their level of consciousness. Moreover, there has been a dramatic acceleration and it is now undeniable that planet Earth is experiencing a deluge of cosmic and solar energies.

Scientists are now observing planet-wide physical changes in all the planets that make up our solar system. Some changes are occurring in a matter of decades, others in only a few years. Cosmic energy and dust is flooding our solar system, and scientists are now openly referring to "space climate change" [1]. Yet, these new conditions have been long predicted and welcomed by some as 'New Energy'. This has provoked a flurry of scientific investigation, with thousands of scientists involved in international efforts to understand the consequences. The Sun's behavior is now unpredictable, and since 1989 there have been some severe solar flares. Just one solar flare enables the delivery of magnetic energy that is equivalent to 100 billion Hiroshima sized atomic bombs. Another solar activity, coronal mass ejections, occur when the surface and atmosphere of the Sun just lifts off and flings trillions of metric tons of highly charged sub-atomic articles into space, sometimes aimed directly at Earth. When space weather arrives, it first slams into our magnetosphere compressing it, and sometimes this magnetic shield in space is so compressed that satellites in geosynchronous orbit are left exposed to hostile cosmic conditions and vulnerable to being zapped by highly charged electrical energy. Over the last two decades or so, the dramatic increase in solar activity quickly commanded the attention of various government organizations: the military, satellite communication manufacturers and the power supply industry. To cope with the new hostile conditions in space, we now have an "armada" of satellites one million miles from Earth watching the Sun. Their function is to provide an approximate 45 minute warning to satellite controllers, who then have sufficient time to put Earth bound satellites into “safe mode”, hence protecting them against “killer electrons”.

With the continuing onslaught of space weather, the inevitable can no longer be ignored. The highly delicate Earth environment is not able to withstand the pressure and so governments are conceding that global climatic change is underway, but the evidence to support an anthropogenic cause is doubtful. Climate scientists tell us that recent air and ocean temperature data shows that older climate models overestimated temperature rises [2]. The climate establishment suggests that cooling due to ‘undetected’ aerosols might be responsible for the failure of the models to date, but others think this is a poor excuse. There is some slight warming but not as much as predicted or in the way it was supposed to occur. In fact, climate skeptics believe that the slight rise in air temperatures is not caused by human CO₂ emissions, and what has been detected is mainly due to other mechanisms. The most popular belief by climate skeptics is that the planet is gently warming up after the last Mini-Ice Age with a fairly steady warming trend of 0.5°C per century since 1680 (with alternating ~30 year periods of warming and mild cooling) whereas the vast bulk of all human CO₂ emissions have been after 1945.

In tandem with climatic change, scientists tell us that geological and geophysical changes are becoming irreversible. The bizarre weather and persistent breaking of weather records is now giving cause for concern, so we find that quietly, government organizations are planning for the possibility of a global disaster. In January 2006, the Norwegian government announced that they would build a vault to store seeds in a mountainside on the island of Svalbard 1,000 km (600 miles) from the North Pole. Described as a “Noah’s Ark” by the Norwegian Agriculture and Food Minister, the vault’s purpose is to enable survivors of a global disaster to re-seed Earth [3]. This announcement was reported in various publications and one reason given for this planning was the possibility of a complete breakdown of global electricity supplies, but no mention is given of why this would occur.

Well, this book reveals that the electrical conditions in our solar system have changed; and hence, there is a possibility that planet Earth could get “zapped” by a large electrical current flowing from space! There are electric fields in outer-space and this has been known by elite scientists for decades, yet the electrical properties of space are not taken fully in account by most ordinary astronomers. This explains why astronomical discoveries are constantly described as “surprising” and “amazing” and popular theory consistently fails to explain observations brought back to Earth via satellite images and space probes. A major pillar of cosmological and astronomical theory is that gravity rules the universe. This outdated thinking is finally losing dominance as scientists slowly realize that the universe is not electrically neutral. Simply put, it is hard to comprehend why cosmologists believe that gravity rules the universe, when the electromagnetic force is 10 times (a thousand billion, billion, billion, billion times) more powerful! Plasma physicists and electrical engineers accept that electromagnetism is the primary driver in the universe and they can explain how energy is delivered around by the cosmic web of electric power lines in space. The universe has a live electrical network that links everything together. Energy is connected to energy – everyone to everyone – everything to everything – every planet to every planet – every solar body to every solar body. The electrical conditions in our galaxy and solar system are changing, and we may be in store for a shock!

The true nature of our reality is now apparent. Physicists verify the presence of an underlying sea of electromagnetic energy, of almost inconceivable magnitude. The invisible aether that was once widely believed to exist by mystics and scientists and later largely discredited by one flawed experiment has now attained mainstream scientific acceptance and is being passed off under the guise of zero-point energy! The new name was derived because there is always some energy in the background. Even at absolute zero temperature a constant fluctuation of energetic particles appear and disappear. Yet, space weather suggests that sub-atomic particles that are the edge of physicality are flooding our solar system. It is no longer seems appropriate to just talk about tiny fluctuations in the aether or space when Earth is facing cosmic tsunamis from space!

To understand how the universe really works, the book Tuning the Diamonds: Electromagnetism and Spiritual Evolution, highlights shifting scientific opinion. As humanity faces evolutionary challenge, we can choose to no longer listen to those scientists who can only offer abstract mathematics and no real answers. The changes that are happening on Earth are real; hence, we need explanations that can be backed up with hard facts. The science of plasma physics explains the true nature of our universe and can provide many answers to astronomical enigmas. The ability to demonstrate plasma events, with laboratory experiments and supercomputer simulation, means that we can return to the true scientific tradition where predictions, observations and validations serve to enlighten. Modern Mayan Elders predicted a new era dominated by aether or space and the arrival of a “Serpent Rope”. Now, with our modern day understanding of the behavior of plasma, we can now understand these old prophecies. Mayan prophecies are now fulfilled with the arrival of space weather and a new space weather feature called, “The Equatorial Electrojet”, a “huge” snake-like electrical current of millions of ampères, currently dancing around the Earth’s equator.

The Earth is undergoing transformation and Russian scientists tell us that the Earth’s frequency which creates magnetic grid lines, commonly referred to as “ley lines” has changed in recent years. When we examine the overall shape of these grid lines, we find crystal-like geometry and a diamond! Geophysicists tell us the Earth’s magnetic field appears to be in the process of reversing, but cannot predict when a full flip will occur. However, we do know that in the last eighty years or so, at the Core-Mantle-Boundary, there are parts of the Earth’s magnetic field where the direction of magnetic flux has already reversed. Thus, if these areas continue to grow and engulf both poles, then a magnetic reversal will ensue. Geophysicists cannot provide a timeline for when this could happen, but what most people don’t know is that Earth’s magnetic field is also dependent on an electrical ring current around Earth. This gives rise to a magnetic field that is in opposite direction to the main dipole magnetic field at Earth’s surface. Therefore, when there are storms from space, the magnetic field values measured on the Earth’s surface can dramatically change. Thus it appears that Earth’s intrinsic magnetism is still a mystery. Scientists are not certain how the Earth obtained its magnetic field in the first place and what exactly maintains the field we have now. Yet, if we take a closer look at the Earth’s core, where the Earth’s magnetic field originates, we get another surprise. The data suggests that the inner core, which is about the size of our moon, is crystalline and appears to be just like one large diamond crystal!

There have been many amazing yet similar discoveries in space as well. One enigma is that galaxies are distributed in a diamond lattice formation! These discoveries reveal that geometry is fundamental to how the universe is organized. Understanding the true state of the universe will help us understand the true nature of the human being. Diamond geometry is the signature of the ability of universal consciousness to transmit and receive information, and this geometry can be found at all levels from the truly macroscopic to the microscopic. Diamond geometry can even be found in the human energy field and its importance is highlighted in this book.

Today technology has reached places that only mystics have gone before. For instance, now the human energy field has been detected and verified by science. The magic eye of electrodes can detect parts of the electromagnetic spectrum and fields of energy that have only previously been seen by the gifted. Healing energies can now be explained in scientific terms, but this requires that we understand the interplay of electromagnetic forces that make-up our reality. As usual, Russian authorities are leading the way with a greater public acceptance of esoteric knowledge and abilities and are now inviting those who claim to have healing abilities to submit to tests and prove that their brain is linking up with universal energies. There is no longer any doubt; science proves that certain people can routinely attract negative entropic or universal energies. What's more, scientists admit that humans must have the ability to interact with other realms of reality and now only the uneducated claim Extra Sensory Perception (ESP) is the domain of gypsies and fortune-tellers. Now, armchair techniques have been developed by military organizations and are employed for the practical purpose of ESPionage! Bolstered by their success, the United States military are now publicly investigating teleportation and have enthusiastically endorsed the power of yogis as real!

Evolutionary change encourages us to understand the concept of multi-dimensional realities, encapsulated within our modern scientific theories such as String Theory. Yet, the controversial book The Da Vinci Code, by Dan Brown, has recently introduced many to the concept that there is esoteric knowledge, preserved for many thousands of years, carefully blended into the background of culture and science. In the metaphysical world, it is understood that in the 'New Energy' there can be no secrets. For the sake of humanity, those secrets are now being revealed in order to help us evolve in a gracious way. In this regard, the book Tuning the Diamonds: Electromagnetism and Spiritual Evolution introduces the science associated with "Sacred Geometry". Here, the main focus is the cuboctahedron and octahedron. In the last few years there has been incredible evidence that ordinary diamonds have quantum effects at the macro scale but that the same time human DNA is also generating energetic diamonds too. Hence, the unique properties of cuboctahedron and octahedron geometries are examined and the connection with universal consciousness is explored.

As the electromagnetic grid of planet Earth has changed, metaphysical insight suggests that we will have to follow suit. Thus, as the presence of 'New Energy' gets stronger on Earth, humans will have to maintain balance. When we discuss balance, we are referring to mental and emotional health as well as motor, sensory and intellectual capabilities. This is achieved by strengthening our core energy and energy field, whilst activating a specific lattice of light in our personal energy field. This book goes beyond the commonly held ideas in the metaphysical community and provides the solid evidence from world experts who can explain the existence of a human energy field and lattice of light that allows for a truly balanced human.

Russians scientists have been exploring the mystery of The Great Pyramid, placed in the geographical center of the world. Extensive research has satisfied them that it generated powerful, but balanced electromagnetic and non traditional forces and this was utilized by ancient Egyptians. Consequently, the Russians have been building massive pyramids since 1989, as they believe the balancing influence of these pyramids will benefit the whole world. At this time of accelerated change, the people of higher consciousness can provide the same balancing role intended by the builders of the Great Pyramid. We can use our consciousness to program the diamond crystalline core of Earth and in doing so, lessen the climatic and geophysical upheaval that is a necessary part of evolutionary change. We can take more responsibility and start Tuning the Diamonds.
